Join us for an exciting trip back in time as we explore African American archaeology in the Chesapeake region. Through classroom investigation of a slave quarter at Thomas Jefferson’s Poplar Forest plantation, learn how enslaved families skillfully organized their living spaces and maintained a modicum of control over their lives. Become familiar with how archaeologists analyze artifacts and historic structures. Practice the basics of scientific inquiry (observation, inference, evidence, and classification) using authentic archaeological data. Explore the ethics of conducting scientific research on past cultures and peoples and engage in civic dialogue using the information gained through genuine inquiry. As an interdisciplinary science, archaeology offers innovative and exciting opportunities to integrate math, science and the social studies and to engage youth in science and social studies education. The workshop includes one day working on an 18th century archaeological site at Jefferson Patterson Park and Museum in Calvert County, MD.

Participants will receive full instruction in archaeological science for the classroom and Project Archaeology: Investigating Shelter, a complete curriculum guide that is endorsed by the National Council for the Social Studies.
APPLICATION
Project Archaeology: Investigating Shelter Workshop
African American Archaeology in the Chesapeake

June 28-30, 2010

Please complete a separate form for each applicant. Duplicate this form as needed. Please type or print clearly. Applications are due May 15, 2010. Make checks out to the Smithsonian Institution for $95.

Name__________________________________________________________
Email Address____________________________________________________
Street Address__________________________________________________________________________________

Daytime Telephone ________________ Home/Cell Number ____________________
School District________________________ Name of School____________________
What grade(s) do you teach?__________________________________________

What subject(s) do you teach? _________________________________________

Why are you interested in attending this workshop?________________________
________________________________________________________________________

Applications due  May 15, 2010

Mail registration form with $95 check to:

Ann Kaupp
Department of Anthropology
PO Box 37012
NMNH 363, MRC 112
Smithsonian Institution
Washington, DC 20013-7012

Workshop sponsored by the Department of Anthropology, National Museum of Natural History, and Jefferson Patterson Park and Museum. The Department of Anthropology sponsors the Chesapeake Regional Program of Project Archaeology.